

MD Players get NY Exposure

September 25, 2008

Stacey Davis

NYChoops.net Staff Writer

Talk about it in the Message Boards

The Princeton Day Academy seniors 6-foot-10 forward John Underwood, 6-foot-2 combo guard Jibri Banner and 6-foot-2 point guard Jamaur David Jackson have elevated the level of play at the iS8/Nike Tip-Off Fall Classic in Jamaica, NY.

M. Wingate

Jamaur Jackson & John Underwood

Just this week Underwood committed to James Madison University. This leaves two of the Maryland school's top talent open for recruiting.

Jackson has captured the top Ivy League schools attention this year with his game and academics. According to Jackson, the school that have shown interest in him are Harvard, Princeton, Brown, Morehead State, and Saint Francis.

Banner, who hit four back-to-back three pointers in their last game against Peekskill HS, has interest from Brown, and Fairfield.

The Princeton Day Academy is coached by Van Whitfield, who last season produced an impressive boys' basketball teams at Progressive Christian and Southern Maryland Christian. Whitfield left Progressive Christian and is now the coach at Princeton Day Academy, a new private school in Upper Marlboro, Maryland.

The team has captured first place in their pool with a stellar 4-0 record and will head to the playoffs in the iS8 scheduled to begin on Tuesday October 7.